

Alejandro Rodriguez

Values: I believe honesty and a sense of community can get us far. I really believe having friends and family that are close is much more rewarding than social platforms where you get blank praise.

Interests: Music, lately newer pop, I've always not liked pop but a few newer artists have made me think otherwise. Games, mostly PC nowadays. Newer tech, always interesting learning about new things. Traveling, I don't get to go many places but have enjoyed where I have gone.

Career: I do not know yet, I am studying programming because I enjoy it, but I have no clear goal of what specific kind of job I want.

What I hope to learn: Mainly, I feel like learning Java as well as I learnt Python would be a big help to me. While Python is definitely a good scripting language, I feel you can't make any big project without the use of the language being suboptimal. Plus learning Java would be a good leeway into learning other languages also, since they function a bit more like Java than Python.